DIARY OF GERMAN WAR BRIDE BARES ATROCITIES.

I have asked him many times since he came home. But he will not talk. He only clenches his teeth. It is forbidden to talk about one's superior officers.

I thank God more than ever that August is now out of the army. He told me again today that he will never be able to go back.

When we met the captain August came to attention and saluted. The captain looked at him as if he were dirt under his feet and he gave me an ugly leer and stopped. August could not stop in the presence of his captain. He had to go and leave me there.

The captain leered at me again. He always looked at me that way.

It was so frightened I could not talk.

"Well, little girl, I see you are as pretty as ever," he said.

My knees trembled with fear. He must have seen the look of dislike that I gave him, but he paid no attention.

"Don't be frightened," he said, "but come and sit with me for a moment."

I was afraid he still had some power over August that he could use to harm him, and I dreaded to offend him let him use it.

We went to a nearby table. The captain evidently had been drinking quite heavily, but he ordered more beer. August had stepped out of sight, but was still near, I knew, and would protect me.

Major's Intervention Frees Helpless Girl.

I was glad, however, the captain could not see him. Some of the older officers treat the privates better than before the war, but not Capt. Fritz.

He is meaner to them than ever, and I know now why all of the men of his command hate him.

He leered at me again over his glass. I prayed for a way to escape from his company, and my prayer was answered. Maj. Paul came up, and the captain ordered me away.

I joined August at the park gates and we hurried all the way home. I was trembling all over when I reached our house. August was whiter than even physical wounds could have made him.

I thanked God again that I have been given the love of so strong, so real a protector and man.

"I thought the captain was away on the west front," I told August when we reached home.

I was afraid to speak above a whisper lest someone hear me and repeat what I said. In my fright even my whisper sounded loud.

"I did not see him until yesterday, but I am afraid his return here means no good for us or anyone else," August said. Then he asked me: "Have you noticed some of the pamphlets that are being sent around to the single and widowed womenfolk?"

Officer's Sinister Purpose is Revealed.

My curiosity is aroused, and I will ask mother what they contain. I tried to get August to tell me, but he said:

"Maybe your mother will tell you at the proper time. But I have reason to believe that Capt. Fritz is here on business connected with these pamphlets."

He ground his teeth as he mentioned the captain's name. I believe August could and would kill him if any harm ever came to me.

Then for the rest of the evening he sat and held my hand.

"Let your mother tell you, and while Capt. Fritz is here stay close to the house," was all he would say.

He need not have told me to keep out of the captain's way, for he has too often tried to force his attentions on me, and I hate him. He is the kind of a man who can be most agreeable, and yet is not fit companion for a good girl.

No good ever comes of the attentions of a noble to a commoner, except in story books. And, anyway, I would not look at the Emperor so long as I have August's love.

But everything is so mysterious, and August's talk about these pamphlets and his manner so disturbing that I am afraid. I shall ask mother about those pamphlets in the morning.

[The second installment of the German war bride's diary will appear in tomorrow's issue of The Times.]

ENING DESTRUCTION.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 10.—Orville Enright and Louis Pickens have been indicted by the Federal grand jury and Federal officers have arrested them on charges that they planned to institute a "revolution" to "rip open" the State of Oklahoma from end to end."

The "revolution" reached the convention stage near a little rural schoolhouse in Ellis county a week ago.

Thirty hired hands from surrounding farms are said to have appeared.

Enright and Pickens explained that bales of hay and straw were to be piled up all around bridges and telephone wires would be cut, rendering communication impossible.

Revolutionary moves were to be made the following night, but a storm disrupted plans.

Then one of the revolutionists, fearing the wrath of the government, came to Oklahoma City, telling his story to the United States District Attorney.

NEW YORK, March 10.——A message from Gen. Pershing urging women in the United States not to work haphazard, but to do what they are told, was broadcast this country today by Miss Carrie Spencer, appointed chairman of the Food for France Fund by Jules Godart, French Undersecretary of State for Medical Services and head of the French Service de Santé.

"Let the women of America, the men, obey orders from the pipe over there," said the Pershing message. "These people have to work here after this is wanted and what is to be done is to let the women not try to do it haphazard, but do what they can be done."

"Also, let them write to boys over here cheerful letters, not letters with grousing boys here have lot and it is their in America to keep them in orders and work write."

THE PARKWAY AND THE PARK

LOS ANGELES, March 10.——The Editor of The Times: The actions of the City Councilmen a few days ago in attempting to close the Silver Lake parkway were perplexing. Every requirement the law has been fulfilled on a protest of possibly more than the interested parties has been against it. Seemingly the Councilmen have determined to do away with old-fashioned majorly rules and had in improvement made by many years, a very unusual attitude to say the least.

No doubt if there ever has been improvement before the Council did not have about one-third those interested in opposition for the assessments. I presume may be unequalled in size and if that is to be the case, just rectify the assessment.

The Council has the power and simply send the rolls back to assessment bureau and have reversed. Sure enough, the entire project was abandoned. Surprisingly, the entire project was reversed. We are told many persons will lose their homes, there has been any real investigation responsible party responsible? Give me the names of the people, if any, and I doubt would suffice.

NEW YORK, March 10.——The cancellation of the army-navy football game last fall has a detrimental effect on the athletic spirit at West Point, according to the annual report of Capt. John E. McMahon to the Army Athletic Council.

The report predicts that unless the fall football season will be discontinued, the teams which are being considered for the coming season have demanded increased guarantees and Capt. McMahon will be forced to work hard to meet the demands.

Capt. McMahon also points out that athletics cannot be carried on successfully unless there is the incentive of a game with Annapolis as a climax of the season. Without such a game, the cadets do not take much interest in the team and the football players lack the interest which would maintain.

WHO'S WHO IN LUTHERANISM.

Brief Notes on History and Work of Many Churches.

Different Branches of Sect Show Thriving Growth.

Food Administration Worker to Take Local Pulpit.

Summarized facts on the work of some of the more influential of the Lutheran churches of Los Angeles and vicinity are given below, together with their history in brief and their succession of pastors:

FIRST ENGLISH LUTHERAN.

REV. C. W. HEISLER.

The First English Lutheran Church of Los Angeles was organized January 2, 1887, by the Rev. C. W. Heisler, with twenty-three charter members. After a ministry of six years Dr. Heisler retired and was succeeded by Rev. M. H. Stine, who guided the destinies of the congregation for three years. In 1895 Rev. W. Ball became a member of five years. In December, 1900, Rev. Herbert J. Weaver became pastor, and he continued in charge of the congregation for a period of fifteen years. During his pastorate the confirmed membership increased to 721, a pipe organ was installed, costing $2,000, and a sun-day school building was erected at a cost of $15,000.

The present pastor is Rev. W. D. Dyrssen, who took charge in December, 1915. The First Lutheran Church has been noted for its missions and work among the foreign born. Out of total expenditures aggregating $146,000, $21,000 has been given to various benevolent and charitable causes. Recently Miss Mary Dyrssen, wife of the pastor, attached herself to the Lutheran Mission in Liberia, Africa.

ST. MARK'S LUTHERAN.

REV. JESSE W. BALL.

St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church was organized December 6, 1906, at the home of Rev. George F. Wind, Thirty-sixth street and Bunker Hill avenue, by fourteen persons. November 15, 1908, the lot on which the church building stands was purchased for $2200. A chapel was erected on the lot and dedicated December 21, that year.

Rev. Bird was succeeded in August, 1907, by Rev. J. W. Romich, under his ministry the church continued to grow, and the property was improved. Rev. Romich retired November 1, 1918.

The present pastor, Rev. Jesse W. Ball, Ph.D., took charge November 29, 1917, and has taken to reduce the debt, pay the street in front of the church and otherwise improve the property. The present church building was erected in 1911. The cost of building and furniture was about $16,000, the total valuation of the property being $14,500.

FIRST LUTHERAN, COLENDALE.

REV. R. W. MÖRTERN.

The First Lutheran Church, located on the corner of Fifth and Maryland streets, was organized July 7, 1912, by Rev. M. E. Binkler, who became its first pastor, serving in that capacity for two years. During his pastorate the congregation had twenty-six charter members. Rev. G. Wenning was the next pastor in charge. He served one year, to January 1, 1914. April 1, 1915, the present pastor, Rev. R. W. Mortern, took up the work.

The congregation worshipped in the L.O.O.F. Hall until May that year, when it moved into the Adenauers' Church building, where it remained for two years, while the Lutheran work was gaining a more substantial foothold.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN.

REV. JOHN E. HOICK.

In 1912 a canvas of the Boyle Heights section was made under the direction of the Synodical Home Mission Committee by the Rev. R. B. Dunn. There was a large number of families here, without an English Lutheran church organization.

Under the fostering care of the First Lutheran congregation, an aggressive nucleus was brought together, on January 1, 1914, St. Paul's Lutheran Church was organized. For a time the use of the Euclid Avenue Methodist Church building was secured for afternoon services and the Synodical Missionary, Rev. W. E. Crawford, took charge. In November, 1914, Rev. J. A. Miller took charge and during the following ten months the membership was doubled. The vacated Methodist church was purchased and entirely paid for, and an active group of workers brought together.

IN OCTOBER, 1915, REV. JOHN EDWARD HOICK BECAME PASTOR, AND SINCE THEN THE CHURCH HAS CONTINUED TO ADVANCE.

Rev. Hoick has conducted out twenty years of service in connection with the work of the Lutheran church in California.

EMMANUEL DANISH LUTHERAN.

REV. F. MAILLAND.

The Danish people of Los Angeles rallied about twelve years ago and a Danish Lutheran congregation was organized. For several years they had the ministerial services of a layman. Then for six or seven years the minister in charge of the work in a Danish colony in Santa Barbara county conducted services here at stated intervals. This arrangement continued until 1915, when Rev. F. Mailland of Salinas, Cal., was called to the pulpit. He instituted steps for the erection of a church at No. 422½, Forty-first street. The dedicatory services took place the January, 1916. Since that time the work has advanced rapidly and last year the congregation purchased a lot on July 22, that year, the feast of dedication took place.

Today the congregation numbers fifty.

The church has a sun-day school with seventy scholars enrolled.

A Society of twenty-five young people, a ladies' aid, a missionary society and a men's brotherhood, all working for the uplift of the community and the betterment of its social conditions.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

REV. M. A. NORDSTROM.

The Angelus Swedish Lutheran Church was organized January 12, 1895, with twenty-nine charter members.

Services were first held in Armory Hall on Main street.

Later the church occupied its own building on Tenth and Grand avenues, with a membership of 100.

With the present church edifice at Seventeenth and Hope streets was completed.

From small beginnings it has experienced a steady progress and now enrolls 450 communicants.

Associated with the Angelus back cisco.

The pastors who have served the congregation follow: Rev. F. A. Edquist, from 1889 to 1895; Rev. H. P. Durkee, during 1895-1896; Rev. J. A. published herein.

BOOZE'S BEST.
Said the old lady: "The devil has one good quality—he is very industrious." Perhaps the best thing to be said is behalf of booze is that many men and women shell out more liberally after the champagne has got in its work.

GET IT? The British never did quite "get" the American joke. Here's Lloyd George wishing for Leonard Wood, and wondering where he has been pocketed. Doesn't the Premier know yet that we are making the world safe for "democracy"—and that Gen.
Wood isn't a Democrat?

WHY BLUBBER ABOUT IT?
When we are discussing the eating of whale meat, let it be remembered that the whale is as essentially a mammal as a sheep or a cow. Therefore we can get the stuff down by imagining that it is a bit of lamb roast or tenderloin. There is so much in imagination, as well as in meat.

EINIE'S UKASE.
Lenine has issued a ukase warning the Russian people not to say unkind things about the Trotsky-Hertling treaty because the one that Napoleon imposed on the Prussians was ten times heavier. But he failed to explain that as long as Germany has possession of the goods she cares nothing about the contract. It takes more than a scrap of paper to satisfy German greed.

FINLAND.
All doubt as to the German occupation of Finland has been removed. A telegram from a Finnish city announces that the Finnish government "has asked the German Emperor to appoint his fifth son, Prince Oscar, King of Finland." "Has asked" is good.
The voice that did the asking probably spoke through a gramophone by means of a record carried to Finland from Berlin.

IN THE HOLY LAND.
Apparently the age of miracles in the Holy Land is not past. A dispatch from Constantinople announced Friday morning that the Turks had blown up the great bridge across the River Jordan near Jerusalem to check the British advance; and a London dispatch Friday afternoon reported that the British troops were safely across. A new Joshua must have been on the job.

NAMES.
Who says there is no magic in a name?
Great Britain has been so carried away by the magic in a name that she has retired a perfectly good head of the General Staff of the name of Robertson to make room for Gen. Wilson. It begins to look as though the firm of Wilson & Wilson will be Germany's most powerful contenders. Besides, "Bolo" is the name of a crooked weapon used by the head hunters in the Philippines.

PEACE TREATIES.
"Peace without victory" is a stock term of the pacifists of all countries. Such treaties are not unknown to history, but they have seldom been regarded as blessings by the people who agreed to them. France and Great Britain in turn signed treaties of peace without victory when they surrendered their American colonies. France signed a similar treaty in 1871; and another has just been concluded in the name of the Russian people by the Bolsheviks.

PLOW AND HOE.
As the food shortage of the world develops, the man with the hoe is coming into his own. Lord Rhondda, British Food Administrator, is quoted as saying to Hoover early in January, "Unless you can send us 75,000,000 bushels of wheat we cannot hold out until your army is ready to strike." Most of that wheat has already been shipped and the remainder is ready for shipment. But what about filling a similar order next year? Workers and more workers are necessary; we must not question their age, race or previous condition of servitude, providing they are available to plow, plant and hoe.

THE GREATEST INSTITUTION.
On another page of this morning's Times appears a brief, though comprehensive history of Lutheranism in America and a detailed account of the work of the Lutheran church in Southern California since its establishment in Los Angeles. From week to week The Times has been pointing the stories of various churches of the Southwest, a series of articles that are not only welcomed by the members of the different religious denominational bodies but which are proving instructive to the general reader who, although he may not belong to any church, desires to keep in touch with the work of every organization which has for its aim the betterment of human society. The church—and by that term we include every Christian organization—is still the greatest single institution in the world operating for good, a fact which is too often lost sight of in these strenuous times. The Times is proud of the many great churches of Southern California and is glad to be able thus to place before the public the history of their beneficent influence upon the people of this glowing commonwealth.

DANGERS AT OUR DOORS.
It is popular to be an optimist. With the American people it is considered graceful to be a pessimist. It must have been an American who defined a pessimist as "a blind man looking in a dark room for a black hat which wasn't there." We Americans almost worship the spirit of Pat of whom it was said:

"He fell ten stories.
At each window bar
He shouted to his friends—
'All right, thus far.'

In our delirium of democratic delight we have become oblivious of subtle dangers which lurk at democracy's door. But the time may come when the chief function of a friend is pointing out the foe. Real loyalty recognizes the dangers of disease and death and takes precaution against them.
To face an unfavorable fact in a situation is the first function of intelligence. All parents and teachers and builders and surgeons and statesmen must deal with danger on principles of safety. Wisdom puts upon our automobile highways the "DANGER" signal in many places. Not to do so would be disloyalty to the safety of others.
Every fire brigade means an intelligent recognition of danger and provision against it.
Our police force means an intelligent provision against peril. Even before this war it was one of America's few remaining symptoms of "Preparedness." Every time we look a door it means that we still have sense enough to scent danger. It means the same thing when we wait till the car stops before we attempt to get off. We even put our money changers in our business places up on elevations or fence them about with iron railings.

Ignorance is not bliss; folly is not wisdom—that old saw to the contrary notwithstanding. It may be comforting to the baby to think that the mad dog will not bite and that the cat whose tail the baby pulls will not scratch. But, in the long run, it would have been more comforting to the baby not to fool with the dog nor pull pussy's tail. It was once comforting to us to think that we could punch a hornets' nest to pieces with impunity. But at this remembrance of the hornets' nest those solemn words of Tennyson occur to our mind—

"I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me."

This business of "holding the thought" is sometimes a serious matter. Several things are involved. First, in order to hold a thought one must get hold of the thought. Then, secondly, if it turns out to be profitable to "hold the thought," the said thought must stand for truth and not error.

II.

Now, because we love our country, because we love our fellow-men, because we love our struggling, suffering world and because we are not afraid to face the unfavorable facts and deal courageously with them, we are here pointing out a whole hornets' nest of dangers to American democracy.

Does anybody think that the SALOON is ever was a safe thing to have around? Did it ever make business or the home or citizenship or human society safer? How much protection is there in a non-resisting, fussy and effeminate pacifist. Is he a peacemaker when he refuses to bring to book the peacebreaker? And how long will it take us happy-go-lucky folk to really get onto the fact that the profiteer is only another name for the highwayman, the bank looter and the holder-up of a trainload of passengers at the point of a gun? Do we not know that a parlor thief of a million is as really a thief as the back-alley thief of a dollar? Our American safety at this moment lies in our dealing with this parlor, profiteer thief as promptly and as punitively as we deal with the tramp thief in the back alley. Who is this profiteer? Let us get a clear definition of him so our police can pick him out in the crowd. The profiteer is any person who uses his possession or his position or power for personal profit as over against the welfare of the people.

III.

Then there is our parasitic politician. What right have thieves to send one of their number to represent them in Legislature or in Congress? And are we even decent Americans if we permit them to do it? We are of no account unless we take a determined stand at once and forever for the people as over against the plundering politician. True democracy would not permit the white-slavery business to be represented in legislative matters. It is Prussian politics and not American democracy that does this. Away with this whole Kaiser brood! What do we expect our soldiers to do with the Kaiserites when they meet them across the sea? We have no right to be any easier with these perfidious Prussians at our door than we expect our sons to be in the fight across the sea.

How often do we need to be told that the Prussian propagandist is another peril at our doors? He prints a newspaper or he writes a book or he distributes circulars or teaches in a school or makes a speech. These are dangerous educators of un-American ideals. Even American democracy must make a difference between liberty and license. Liberty is doing what we ought, regardless of what we please; license is doing what we please regardless of what we ought. No man has a right to rock a boat when by so doing he imperils the safety of others.

The sneaking, sly spy is another danger at our doors. What would we expect Pershing and his soldiers to do with him on the other side of the sea? Then, unless we do and do quickly that same thing with him or her on this side of the sea we do not belong to the Allies. It is only make-believe. Our patriotism is a pseudonym. What right have we to send our sons to Europe to shoot Prussians to death when we let them go scot-free here at our doors, thus giving them a chance to shoot our sons to death when they get home? Prussians on this side of the sea are no better than Prussians on the other side of the sea. If it is our sons' duty to stop them there it is their fathers' duty to stop them here.

If we are obliged to be in the killing business, as much as we regret it, let the man be killed that ought to be killed. Do not kill the man whom the dog attacked, but kill the dog that attacked the man. Do not kill the farmer who stepped on the snake, but kill the snake that bit the farmer. If something has to be killed let us kill the thing that ought to be killed. Let us kill Prussians at home and abroad. That is the challenge of our government this moment to every one of us. That is the challenge of our world democracy. We have put our hands to the plow and we cannot turn back. Kill the serpent or be killed by the serpent. That is the clarion call of every liberty-loving nation this moment. It is not a political slogan. It is not buncombe. It is no idle jest. The fight is on.

Our brave boys are actually at it now. Who are we at home that we should loaf on the job? We cannot hobnob with the Huns at home and be true to our sons who are fighting the Huns abroad.

IV.

Moral indignation at injustice is the only safeguard of national righteousness. We have been too free and easy with a dozen dangers at our doors. It has been only a dangerous moral and spiritual flabbiness on the part of the American people which has permitted the world outlawed saloon to plunder us of tens of thousands of our citizens and two billion dollars of our money annually for years and years. People of America, we cannot save the American saloon and the American state. It is sober truth to say that Bacchus and Berlin are this moment two of the deadliest dangers at our doors. Our boys are busy on the other side of the sea. They have a right to expect us to get busy on this side.

To summarize: What are the dangers at our door? They are, to be practically specific, the saloon, the pacifist, the pandancer, the profiteer, the self-exploiting politician, the Prussian propagandist, Prussian sleuths and an easy-going defenselessness among the American people. These dangers at our door must be faced and fought to a finish. We must deal determinedly and at once with these dangers to our American world democracy. BEHOLD, NOW IS THE DAY OF SALVATION."

BRINGING UP BABY.

Statisticians are among the most wonderful animals that roam abroad. With nothing much but his teeth and nails a healthy statistician is able to dig up most anything. He can compute the progress of a glacier or determine the horse power of a billion red ants.

One of the recent triumphs of his research is the establishment of infallible proof that next to an anaconda, a mother is the most dangerous person to whom may be entrusted the care and keep of her own offspring. If mothers would place their babies in baskets and leave them on the church steps, or tuck them in pillow slips and hang them over the back fence in the wind and rain, they would make much better risks for the life insurance companies than when they try to bring them up themselves. The mother of Moses was the first lady to be wise to the mortality tables or the shortcomings of her sex. At any rate she thoughtfully placed the infant Moses in a cracker box and set him adrift in the river.

And what happened?

Moses lived to have the finest stand of white whiskers in the wilderness and to be recognized as the father of a people. If the mother had essayed to bring him up by hand after the manner of her kind the world today might not have the chance to break the Ten Commandments in one afternoon.

Important, therefore, are the statistics which demonstrate that the foundling outlives the infant whom it is sought to rear in the bosom of its ancestry. The abandoned babe has a better chance of living than the coddled pet of the family. The chances for the wail are better than those for the plutocratic princess. The fact is, of course, that the abandoned child is not really abandoned. Ultimately it falls into the hands of intelligent officialdom, where a wholesale business is conducted on a platform of efficiency.

The official figures for the great city of New York, for instance, show that of foundations or abandoned or illegitimate children less than 11 per cent die under two years of age. Of those regularly brought up in their own families the death rate is over 17 per cent for the same period.

So far as the first baby is concerned papa and mamma are about as dangerous as a powder magazine. It is safer to leave baby alone with a razor than a parent.

The presumption is that the waltz brings up in an institution where fresh air is recognized as an asset rather than a liability and yet where an equal proportion is maintained both summer and winter. The child is fed intelligently and regularly, but not too much, and it has a doctor when it needs it and not half the time. Under these simple and sensible conditions the baby grows and thrives.

If Little Willie is left to the mercy of his inexperienced mother he may be killed by kindness. He is liable to be overnourished, overdoctored and overwarmed. Then with a change or lapse from trement the child is unable to respond and is subject to a myriad of ailments with which it is unfitness to cope. The judge who sometimes takes the care and custody of the child from the mother may not be as harsh and cruel as the woman thinks.

After all, it seems to be old maids and the hygienists who are the wise ones in bringing up the kids, and it is these who are in charge of the institutions to whom our foundlings chiefly fall.

THE PROFESSIONAL DO-GOODERS.

There are signs that the people will soon be in open rebellion against the professional do-gooders. The people have long made vicious fun of them behind their backs, but I hear of a moving-picture play called "Intolerance," which is being vigorously applauded and which is a bold attack on an evil generally recognized, but not yet generally denounced in public. One scene of the play is in a factory, where the do-good women insist that reformers be installed to look after the morals of the girls, with the result that wages are decreased to pay the salaries of the reformers. There is a strike as a result, and girls who had been becoming bad women. Also, the do-good women break up a home by starting a scandal on a wife who is really behaving.

If the do-good women could hear the talk behind their backs, and realize the storm that is brewing, I believe they would return home and neglect their neglected affairs.

Hon. Alvan T. Fuller, the Massachusetts Congressman who resigned from one of the thirty or forty supernumerary committees of the House, in a letter that will make history, is somewhat of a man. He has risen in the world as a motor salesman and brought the first two cars from Europe that entered Boston Harbor in 1899. But he has since subscribed one million dollars to the Liberty Loan and has given his salary as a member of Congress to the government.

The Kaiser is the only ruler who ever adopted a revolution. The 190,000,000 people of Russia are so much steeped in revolution that they cannot get over it in a half-century, if they ever do. They are the largest number of poverty-stricken human beings ever shifted from one brand of chaos to another.

A Nature Study.

"What is that noise?" asked little James.

Out walking in the park:

"That noise you hear," his father said.

"Is it the dogwood's bark?"

"And tell me why the dogwood's bark."

"He urged, "with such to-do!"

"'Shink,' his father said, "they hear

The pussy-willows mew."

THE WIND-UP.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

Not many more days—or nights—in which the friendly Indians may wander from place to place yelping: "The Gang's All Here," for the benefit of the rompado party with the white apron who stands behind the glistening mahogany.

What will become of somebody when something happens?

Our old friend Rainbow Jack, the guy promoted "come to see that day lost whose love descending sun finds no Scotch highball starting off his evening bun." He was a bit peevish when I refused to listen seriously to his contention that the man behind the bar would invoke some law of his own to nullify the operation of the anti-saloon ordinance.

"There'll be injunction proceedings to stay the workings of the ordinance," he argued, loftily.

"You can dissolve more injunctions in water than you can in alcohol," retorted I. "If a couple of hundred lame ducks with liquor licenses imagine that they can set aside the easily expressed judgment of a hundred thousand honorable citizens, some judge will tap them on the back and wake them up.

There are sometimes things worth while fighting for, but this isn't one of them. Even if they were able to stay the pale fin of destiny for a few barren hours there would be a fearful reckoning. The people, having once spoken, would not only repeat in an augmented and haughty voice, but they would climb out of their chairs and administer a few wholesome swats whose intent and purpose could not be misinterpreted."

"You talk like a pinch hitter in the Epworth League," replied the promoter, crossly. "Don't you know that that vote was an accident? The people wouldn't vote to set the town back in the crossroads village class if they knew what the were doing."

"Of course they wouldn't," returned I, "and they don't calculate that it makes a rube village out of a place to cut down the visible supply of human megaphones who are going about bellowing for boose."

"Aw! you've been letting the Billy Sunday crowd chloroform you," interrupted the promoter. "He's not the same man I used to know, but I also. I also have to make a living while I am at it and it gives me the willies to see these outsiders put a crimp in my town."

"When we need a real champion for the great city of New York, we go where we can find him," reported I. "You better line up for the big doings."

THE CHRONICLED PROGRESS IN BRIEF OF THE SOUTHWEST'S GREAT OIL AND MINING REVIVAL

SLOW PROGRESS IN VERDE MINE.

Shifting Ground Impedes the Development Work.

Construction of Smelter is Also Delayed.

Metal-Output of Property for Year is Disclosed.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE) JEROME (Ariz.) March 8.—Unusually slow progress is being made in the United Verde Extension drifting on the great tunnel line from the new Texas shaft. Work on the main heading of the tunnel is going ahead very satisfactorily, in excellent ground that requires no timbering. Fair progress is being made on the connecting drift from the mine workings. But the drifting from the 555-foot Texas shaft has been delayed badly by unstable and shifting ground that needs timbering of the stouter sort for every foot of progress. There is said to be one-half mile of ground in this. The material taken out on the mine side of this central drifting is of character that indicates proximity to a valuable ore body not far from the Dundee line. The contractor, the Potter Company, expected to be through this summer. Already it is assured there will be delay, and the reason given is that there has been a delay also in the construction of the smelter in the Verde Valley. This is due in part to the failure of a brick plant to turn out satisfactory materials, though first lots could not be secured from Gallup and most of the needed 10,000 tons had to be ordered in Los Angeles.

During the year, according to the latest report, the Extension's metal output was 62,242,784 pounds of copper, 1,655 ounces of gold and 128,468 ounces of silver, from shipments of 115,064 tons of ore. The per cent of the assay value was the remarkably high average of 27.5 per cent of copper. The year before the shipments aggregated 77,461 tons, averaging 26.5 per cent. Metal revenue for the past year was $14,582,648, compared with $9,949,518 in 1916. Manager Kingdon warns against any expectation that the output will have been particularly increased through the extension of the smelter. The war conditions have called for shipment of the highest grade of ore, though ore shortages have kept the production to about 85% of capacity month of late. When the smelter is working the ore will be taken as it comes and will average very much less copper to the ton than that now being hoisted.

LIST OF NEW OIL WELLS MOUNTS HIGH.

Six new wells were reported to the California State Mining Bureau during the week ending the 2nd inst. This brings the total number of new wells reported this year to 124. Sixteen wells were reported for test or water shut-off, sixteen for deepening or redrilling, and five for abandonment.

The material taken out on the mine side of this central drifting is of character that indicates proximity to a valuable ore body not far from the Dundee line. The contractor, the Potter Company, expected

BEET SUGAR SHORTAGE PREVENTED IS BELIEF.

Thousands of Acres are Planted and Apparently Crisis is Passed.

SUGAR beet acreage already growing are undoubtedly going to pinch on the size of their beet acreage, because they can grow beans on the same land year after year without any apparent effect upon the yield, but they have planted their beet crops, so they are going to plant beans where they had been last year. On the other hand there is a big acreage in Southern California which is scarcely adapted for anything else than sugar beets just now. All of this and some newly-developed land adjacent will be cropped to beets, so the situation as a whole is quite encouraging.

San Joaquin Valley reports that if the commission of inquiry, which is just been completed, although the figures are unofficial, and weather conditions and the report of the commission of inquiry, which is to be made public at Stockton, Saturday, may cause some changes in the totals, men conversant with the situation say that the variations will be slight:

District	Acres
Conecago	4,000
Bakersfield	5,000
Visalia	6,000
San Fernando Valley	4,000
Orange County Valley	4,000
Santa Ana	12,500
Huntington Beach	8,000
Anaheim	9,500
Oxnard	10,000
Total	65,900

With this planting and others to come, it is believed that the crop is passed so far as the sugar beet industry in this state is concerned.

The lure of certain high prices for all kinds of beans this year has unquestionably led many ranchers to abandon their gardens and turn their attention to beans, and there has been considerable delay among those who contemplate planting beans, pending the outcome of the sugar beet plantings.

Beyond a doubt the Orange County and Chino districts have diminished their beet plantings fully 15 per cent this year, but the increase is largest elsewhere — notably at Conecago and Visalia — will in a measure compensate for this localised decrease.

The prospect of a reasonable production the country over makes it appear that there will be enough sugar to supply the nation's needs. Utah and parts of Idaho are said to be increasing the beet acreage two and threefold in many districts, while in the Visalia district the planting is reported to be twice what it amounted to in 1917.

DRY WEATHER HURTS.

In the neighborhood of Oxnard there has been a decided falling off in beet planting. This is the result of dry weather early in the winter. The ranchers became worried over the prospects for beet growing weather, and sowed beet seed in this county is being considered for beet plantings. The seeding can still be done late this month or early next month, according to County Horticulturist C. E. Johnson.
